PEACE DOVE IN MEXICO

Terms of Peace Have Been at Last Practically Agreed Upon.

DIAZ TO RESIGN AT ONCE.

DeBarro President and New Election to Be Called In Six Months.

The Mexican revolutionists gained a complete victory Wednesday when it was announced from Mexico City that President Diaz and Vice President Corral would resign their offices before June 1 and Francisco De la Barra would be made President ad interim and Francisco I. Madero, Jr., President of the Provisional Mexican Government, would be his chief advisor. These two are to form a new cabinet. A general armistice has been declared throughout Mexico and peace is expected to follow. A general presidential election will be called within six months.

DEFENDANTS SCORE.

Judge Evans Declares that Jurors May be Selected Locally.

Judge Walter Evans has overruled the motion of Senator W. O. Bradley in the case of Mrs. Elsie Gaylord Latham against a hundred night riders of Christian, Trigg and Caldwell counties, asking that a jury to try the case be selected from central Kentucky counties. Mrs. Latham is suing for $50,000 for alleged damages for the destruction of property by night riders at Hopkinsville. Senator Bradley does not think a fair trial to his client can be had in Western Kentucky. Judge Evans disagrees with him and overrules the motion. This motion was made at the recent term of Federal court in Owensboro. It is expected that the case will come up for trial at a special term in July.—Owensboro Messenger.

CONFED'S SELECT MACON

Georgia City Gets Confederate Reunion To Be Held Next Year.

LOUISVILLE GOES FOR MACON

Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, is Elected Department Commander.

Little Rock, Ark., May 17.—The Kentucky Delegation to the United Confederate reunion played an important part today in the final selection of Macon, Ga., for the 1912 reunion. Gen. William B. Haldeman, of Louisville, made a strong appeal for Louisville.

On the call of the roll, Louisville received only 144 votes, and on its second ballot the vote went to Macon, which practically gave the Georgia city the convention, as Macon's lead over Houston was less than 150.

Commencement Sermon.

Rev. A. R. Kasey, of this city, will preach the commencement sermon at Vanderbilt Training School, Elkton, on Sunday, May 28.

New Perfection Oil Stoves

THE most economical cook stove is the Oil Cook Stove. It is also the cleanest, most convenient and the quickest cooker known. It will do everything that any other stove will do in the cooking line, and will not heat the kitchen to a temperature that interferes with comfort and health.

THIS stove is simple, safe and reliable. It is an ideal summer stove for city or country. The ovens are scientifically constructed and so ventilated that an even dry heat is maintained and the vapor carried off. The food is thus baked, not merely steamed.

NO SMOKE OR ODOR—NO ASHES OR SOOT.

Avoid the summer heat by using a New Perfection. Come in and see them to-day.

The Way to Keep a City Clean.

Minneapolis is blazing a new trail. She has found out that no city that wants to be a clean city can neglect its garbage handling, and has gone to work to set a pace for the rest of us. The real beauty of it, too, is that she has solved the garbage problem—or more nearly solved it than has anybody else, up to date. She may be said to stand first in the list of cities in America in the solution of the sanitary disposal of the refuse, and other towns are sending delegations to inspect this garbage system. Winnipeg has already patterned after it.

Nearly four years ago this campaign to handle garbage without nuisance was started, and today it is pronounced an unqualified success. No more are there foul, maggoty garbage cans, and all because a city ordinance provides that every housewife shall drain the garbage of all moisture and wrap it in a paper before putting it in the can. This not only insures a clean can but the spaces between the paper allow the air to circulate and keep the garbage from freezing and adhering to the can in cold seasons. In other words, heat, moisture and the fly are all eliminated. Any kind of paper can be used, but as a rule there is plenty of wrapping paper that is always coming around packages from the grocer and butcher, as well as old newspapers, that the housewife is glad to get rid of. That all this may be done more properly the board of health issues a printed card of directions for the housewife and advises that it be hung in the kitchen.

But this is only an important introduction to the story of the garbage system which is being adopted by a large city as a unit. When the garbage man comes round to collect his quota he finds a clean can. He is not faced with wet, dripping refuse and in cold weather he does not take a pick and batter the can in order to lift the frozen material. He merely loads the prepared garbage into a large steel box, somewhat resembling a bath tub, and which has one hundred feet capacity. He hauls this to a central transfer station, where the tanks are lifted off the wagon truck by means of an electric hoist and placed upon flat cars which convey them to the crematory or disposal plant. A train of several cars soon reaches the crematory just outside the city, where the boxes are lifted from the cars by an electric hoist and dumped directly into the fire. In other words, from the time the garbage is rolled in paper by the housewife until the ashes are taken from the fire of the disposal plant there is no necessity for the refuse to be handled by hand. As the paper used to wrap the package is as a rule waste material, this, too, is disposed of and the sanitary condition of the cans and reduction in bulk of the waste, because drained, make the necessity for the collection of cans less frequent—a saving in money to the city.—From "Solving the Garbage Nuisance," in June Technical World Magazine.

Big Fire In Carlisle.

Carlisle, Ky., May 16.—Fire which started this morning at 8 o'clock in the big storage warehouse of Frank Taylor burned out three blocks along Market or Railroad streets, causing a loss of between $250,000 and $300,000, partly covered by insurance, and was not brought under control for over two hours. It continued to burn until noon, despite all that the Carlisle fire department, aided by the Paris, Millersburg and Maysville fire fighters could do.

Notice to Contractors and Farmers of Christian County.

Specifications on file in the office of E. W. Coleman, Road Supervisor. Said roads to be let by sections of from 1½ to five miles. Full particulars can be had as to any section by calling on the Road Supervisor, or County Judge. The Fiscal Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just craped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

LETTER FROM FAR SIAM.

WRITTEN TO HER PARENTS IN THIS CITY
BY MISS LUCY STARLING.

Chieng Mai, Laos, Feb. 8, 1911.—We were all disappointed in the mail this week. No one got very much. All I got was one inland letter. I think the steamer must have been behind time. They say, too, that if there is a big government mail, sometimes, other mail is left behind until the next week. We get used to disappointments of this kind out here though, and having no letters this week, will make it easier for me to get caught up, as I have a good many unanswered letters on hand.

I have just begun to lead chapel exercises in the evening, having given a talk on Monday night, and a drill on the first Psalm tonight, with some impromptu remarks thrown in. I put a great deal of work on the Monday night's talk, it being my first one. It was on God's words to Abraham, "I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing." I had drilled very carefully on it, as I did not want to make any ludicrous mistakes, and spoil the effect of my words; and I imagine I did not make many mistakes, the girls said I did not make any. I am so glad to be getting to the place where I can do what I came here for—to teach the people a little about the Saviour. Of course most of the girls in the school are nominally Christians, but they know very little as to what it all means. And the opportunities to tell of Jesus are limited only by one's ability, and willingness to "spend and be spent." The old matron is very much interested in my progress, and will gladly sit and talk with me by the hour. She says I am learning very fast. Miss Gilson was out here six years but they say she never learned the language. The matron says she never talked with the girls, as I do, and she thinks that is the best way to learn.

Last Saturday afternoon, Miss Buck, Mr. Yates, Dr. Mason, and I rode out five miles to service in a little village on the side of the river. I don't think I ever enjoyed a ride more. There was no road most of the way, only a good foot path right along the river bank. There was the most beautiful scenery all the way—the banks lined with bamboo that furnished shade for us the entire way. It was so interesting to watch the river—folk at their different employments, here was a man tending his sand bar garden; here, two or three boats of fishermen, with their nets; there, a lone man, standing up to his knees in water, pole in hand. Boats were constantly going to and fro, some filled with earthen pots and water-bottles going to market. These boats would be made of a tree, hollowed out, while there were many rafts, made of bamboo poles lashed together, and roofed over with rice-straw.

The village we visited is the home of most of the men who work at the press, and they had decorated for our coming. I forgot to mention that "the flame of the forest" is in bloom now, and every now and then a tree, with its mass of crimson blossoms would light up the green of the river-bank with a dash of color. The natives had used these flowers and palm leaves made into arches, for decorations, and you can imagine how pretty it looked. After the service, we had a feast of different kinds of cakes, made mostly of rice flour, coconut, and bananas; then we raised enough by subscription to build them a chapel and school-house, combined, and came home. It was a delightful afternoon, and Miss Buck and I have decided to go out with our books some afternoon, and spend the afternoon on the river-bank.

I have had two parties since I last wrote you, and I hope they will be the last until school is out. Parties and teaching don't go well together, for me. We had a very pleasant evening at both Harris' and Collinse's. Most elaborate refreshments at both places, but I didn't touch anything at H's, and wish I hadn't at C's. Out here, for refreshments, they have four or five courses, and it isn't dinner, either. And to eat all that stuff at midnight just about finishes me. We had lots of music, which seemed good, for a change, though I don't think many people care much for it. Mr. Lyle, the British consul, who has just returned from furlough, has really a delightful tenor voice, which has been well trained. We got home at midnight last night, leaving immediately after refreshments were served, so I have been stupid all day. I had intended christening my new dress at these two parties, but it was entirely too cold. I wore flannel at both affairs. Nearly every one has had a severe cold during this cold weather, but I have been taking precautions, and so far, have escaped. Last week, about half our girls were coughing like their heads would come off. It made me sick, to see them going around, some with no sleeves at all in their waists, and half of them with their bare stomachs showing, where their waists and skirts failed to meet. And I don't suppose any of them have more than one covering at night, while I had four, not counting the sheet.

We received word today that the Whites, of Chieng Mai, are coming down in about two weeks, for a visit. Mrs. White has been working hard, and is rather broken down, and I think they expect to spend most of their time on the hill. You know we came out together and I shall be glad to see Mrs. W. again. She is one of the loveliest women out here. We hear that Mr. McCluer is better, but still on a milk diet, and rather despondent.

Mr. Mason goes over to Lakawn tomorrow, to see after the new

The Knock-out Blow

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but to the stomach we are utterly indifferent, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out.

Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol—pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Golden Medical Discovery." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If not promptly supplied trade elsewhere.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, cloth-bound. Address Dr. Pierce as above. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and strengthen Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

EVIL OF SCANT MEASURES

Lowest Moral Tone of Trade, Increases Cost of Living and Adds to Hardships of Needy.

If "a false balance is abomination to the Lord," as we are told in the Proverbs, scant measures of every sort are equally abominable to mankind, lowering the moral tone of trade, increasing the cost of living and adding to the hardships of the needy. It is rather curious, therefore, that a fact so obvious, having occupied the attention of society for as long a period as the written record runs, should at the present day have no recognition in the laws or the ordinances of the state or city. Pennsylvania is without official standards of weights or measure except of the most casual sort, and Philadelphia has worried along for upward of a quarter of a century trusting solely to the honor of its tradesmen to give pound for pound and quart for quart, not to mention the scores of other measures of weight, volume and bulk by which commodities are exchanged for value in the markets. How public confidence has been misplaced is now shown in dramatic fashion by the bureau of municipal research, after a thorough investigation, by the actual purchase and test of a large variety of articles constituting the necessities of average daily life.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"FAVORITES" WOULDN'T FIGHT

General Jackson Greatly Disappointed When His Pugnacious Birds Refused to Do Battle.

Cock fighting had been one of General Jackson's favorite home amusements, and he had become possessor of a breed of birds called Hermitage that was invincible in Tennessee. He had some of these pugnacious birds brought to Washington and one spring morning he rode out toward Bladensburg with a select party of friends to see "a main" fought between the Hermitage and the Annapolis cocks. The birds were not only trained to fight, but were equipped for their work. Their heads and necks were plucked, their tail feathers were closely trimmed and their natural spurs were cut off and replaced by "gaffs," or sharp blades of finely tempered steel. General Jackson was confident that his favorites would again be victorious, but there was no fight, to the great disappointment of all present. The long confinement in coops on the stages appeared to have deprived the Hermitage birds of their wonted pluck and the Annapolis birds crowded in triumph.—Perley's Reminiscences.

Sure of a Release.

An enterprising woman who rents several apartments in a new building and sublets them, furnished, room by room, has profited at the rate of several hundred dollars a year by woman's propensity for telling everything she knows. To each applicant for a room she named an exorbitant price to start with.

"Now, understand, this is a concession to you alone, and must be regarded as strictly confidential. If you tell a soul in the house that I have made a reduction in your favor I shall have to charge the original price."

Within two weeks rents had gone up.

"Mrs. Smith tells me," said the astute landlady to each gossiping tenant, "that you told her you pay only $6 for your room, instead of $7." And as no one was in a position to plead not guilty the additional rental was exacted.

What He Wanted.

He was a foreigner, and when he came down to breakfast and looked at the menu card and saw printed at the top, "All cereals 25 cents," it looked to him like a safe order. He beckoned to the waiter and pointing to the line said, "Bring me this."

The waiter brought him a proprietary cereal. The next morning the performance was repeated, only the waiter brought a different cereal, and all through the week until the list of cereals in the kitchen was exhausted, and the first cereal was again served the visitor.

"See here!" he exclaimed. "I have been ordering this all the week, and this is the first time since my first breakfast here that it has been served to me."

The Difference.

Why is it that a girl whom a woman would describe either as "rather plain," or "nothing much to look at," may be in a man's eyes "pretty"? Just because a man judges by the general effect, and discounts such—to him—unimportant trifles as perfect regularity of feature and fashionable attire. A sweet expression and a clear skin—both of which are within the reach of 99 girls out of 100—can carry off successfully the snubbiest of snub noses; and a low, soft voice is, in man's estimation, one of the most infallible charms a woman can have.

What He Wanted.

"Now this car," said the agent, calling Billups' attention to a handsome limousine in the corner, "is a dandy. Rides just like a rocking-chair."

"What do you think I am, an escaped inmate of an old lady's home?" demanded Billups. "I want a car that I'll know I'm in when I'm in it, and when I go out looking for a rocking-chair I'll go to a furniture store, and not to a garage."—Harper's Weekly.

Facts About Motherhood

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at the time of child-birth, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when the strain is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, women will persist in going blindly to the trial. It isn't as though the experience came upon them unawares. They have ample time in which to prepare, but they, for the most part, trust to chance and pay the penalty.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy, and strong.

Any woman who would like special advice in regard to this matter is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her letter will be held in strict confidence.

VERY WARM WAVE.

Thursday Hottest May Day in Many Years.

With the government thermometer registering 97 degrees Thursday was the warmest May day that has been experienced in this section of the country for many years. On Monday the register was 88 degrees in the shade and the mercury kept crawling a little higher in the tube each day until 97 was reached. Tuesday the register was 92 degrees and on Wednesday 94 was reached, according to weather recorder Randle. Yesterday was another scorcher. The unusual warmth has been felt on the streets and in the downtown business offices to a great extent, but no prostrations have been reported in the city.

FAIRVIEW LETTER

Tom Ross, Correspondent

Great preparations are being made for the celebration June 3rd. A basket dinner will be had, and everyone is invited to come and bring something to eat for self and others. It is thought there will be several speakers for the occasion, and other attractions.

Mrs. Alice Lackey was in Hopkinsville Monday shopping.

Mrs. W. W. Eddins continues very low, and the end is expected at any time.

Al Rascoe shot Frank Harris in the right lung at a negro frolic on the Jesup place near here Saturday night, and Harris is in a bad fix. They fell out over a woman. Rascoe has not been arrested yet.

Miss Corrine Parrent, of Hopkinsville, delivered "Polly of the Circus" at the Graded School building here Tuesday night, and everyone was very much pleased with her work.

Prof. J. G. Nease, of Rochester, spent a few days here this week and while here delivered quite an interesting talk on education at the school building. He is an applicant for the school this term.

Mrs. Barbara Harned, aged about 70 years, died at her home near Honey Grove last Monday, of disease incident to old age. She leaves a husband and three sons. The remains were interred at Ebenezer Tuesday, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. Mack Harper of Hopkinsville.

There will be preaching at the Goshen Presbyterian church here next Sunday by Rev. Brevard, of Franklin, and the Christian Endeavor will meet at 3:30 in the afternoon, and it is hoped that everyone will attend.

S. B. Arnold, the newly elected school trustee, was elected chairman of that body last Monday night, and Dr. W. S. Petrie reelected secretary. They have not yet decided on a principal for the school.

The strawberry crop is somewhat short here on account of the continuous dry weather.

Every citizen of our town should clean up his or her premises and not wait until the law compels them to do so. There are some here who will be forced to do that very thing. It is strange why some people will have to be made to clean up when it is to their interest and health to keep around their premises clean and free of cess pools and standing waters to breed mosquitos.

Mr. Press Yancey received another stroke of paralysis last Monday, of the left side of his face, and is in a bad condition.

Mr. John Saunders, of Laytons-ville, is attending the Confederate Reunion at Little Rock this week.

Mr. Dennis Shaw, of Hopkinsville, was in this section Monday.

In the Sand Hills

By PHILIP KEAN

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"I can never marry you and live here," Margaret told her lover.

"Why not?" Allan demanded.

"I hate this country," Margaret said. "I thought when I came to Michigan to teach that I should find it a fertile land, but here on the shores of the lake it is all sand and sky and water."

"I like it," Allan said. "I was brought up here, and somehow the shifting of the sand and the wind across the lake are music to me."

Margaret shrugged her shoulders. "You don't know of anything better."

Allan grew a little white. "Perhaps not," he said. "I realized as soon as you came that I had my limitations. You have seen so much of the world."

"Oh, if you could see the city on the other side of the lake," Margaret said; "with the lights and the life and the gayety. Sometimes I long for it until it seems as if my heart would burst. Some day I am going back to it."

"And I'll be left alone," Allan said.

"Why shouldn't you come?" she asked. "There are many openings for men in the city. You would succeed."

He shook his head. "I think not. I am not used to men; I mean to the strife and striving of men. My father opened the first store in this community. He made a solid reputation for himself and I have followed in his footsteps. All the country people come here; they are my people and this is my country."

Drank in the Beauty of the View.

"But you would love it," she urged. "The excitement would be like wine in your veins. When I was at college we used to go downtown, a crowd of us at night, and it seemed as if all the world was young and gay, and here there is nothing but silence, and all day I teach. It is a monotonous grind. When the spring comes I am going away; I am going back to the city, and some day you will follow me." She looked up at him with a challenge in her eyes.

"I think not," he told her. "Yet who can tell? I feel that you are mine, that I cannot live without you; I must work it out."

She came very close to him. "If you will come to the city," she urged, "I will marry you—and we will live happy ever after."

He caught her in his arms. "You will marry me?" he demanded.

"Then some day I'll come, but it may be that we shall not live happily. I may be like a caged wild bird. You may be ashamed of me."

But she shook her head. "I shall never be ashamed of you," she said. "But I don't love you well enough to live among the sand hills."

When the spring came she went back to town. She had wrung a half promise from him that he would follow her, yet as the summer waned he wrote that he could not yet make a change in his business. It was not the time to sell out. Wouldn't she come back?

"No, no, no," was her answer.

His answer came back. "If you love me you will live among the sand hills."

Secure in her power, however, she flung her defiance at him.

"You'll come," she said, "I know it. I am going to teach here this winter."

At Christmas time he visited her. "I must look around," he said, and she showed him all the sights of the big city, all the glitter and glare and gayety.

"It is wonderful," he agreed, "but I don't like the pace you live; there isn't air enough or sunshine enough, and you are looking white."

"Silly," she said, and dared not tell him of her sleepless nights.

"You'll come back?" she pleaded, as he left.

He looked down into her pale face. "Yes," he said briefly. "I'll come soon and marry you, but I can't tell you what kind of a husband I'll be if I live here. I wasn't born to be caged."

"And I wasn't born to listen to the wind and the waves and the shifting of the sand," she said bitterly.

Once more he visited her before he made his final decision. He found her fainting and gasping in her hot rooms.

"Tomorrow we'll be married," he said with decision, "and I shall take you back to the sand hills."

"But," she protested.

"You need not stay," he told her, "if you do not like it."

The honeymoon journey was a trip on the lake. It was a golden morning when they came to their destination.

Margaret, drawing deep breaths of the summer air, whispered: "I shall like to stay here a little while, but we'll go back, won't we?"

"If you wish it," he said gravely. He led her into the rooms he had prepared for her. The broad, low windows faced the lake. The soft summer winds stirred the curtains and brought refreshing coolness.

"I will leave you here," Allan said. Curled up on the window seat, Margaret drank in the beauty of the view, and was rested by the quiet and coolness.

She fought against the charm of it all. "But I love the city," she told herself vehemently.

They had their supper on the wide porch, and after a long winter of badly prepared food Margaret's appetite was tempted by the delicious fare.

That night Allan worked late at his books in the back of the store. It was 12 o'clock when Margaret stole in.

"Do you mind," she asked gravely, "if I watch you?"

He drew her down beside him. "I am glad you came," he said. "I want to show you something."

Then he went into business details which her quick mind readily grasped.

"This last year has been a fortunate one for me," he said. "I can sell out now profitably and go to town, and now you must plan where we shall live and what we shall do, Margaret. If we could stay here my money would be quite a little fortune and we would be people of some prominence among the sand hills. In the city it will not go far, but you will know best what to do with it."

She rose and went to the window. In front of her stretched the lake and the star-lighted sky. Then she turned back to Allan and saw him for the first time with eyes that were not dazzled by prejudice. He sat in his country store, a little king of the community. In the city he would be an atom, a laborer among the common people. Here among the sand hills his word counted against the word of any other man. He was listened to—looked up to. She came toward him swiftly and stood by his desk.

"What would you think," she asked rapidly, "if I should say that I didn't want to go back?"

His startled eyes met hers. "But you could never be happy here," he said.

"And you could never be happy there," she retorted.

For a moment they faced each other.

Allan said slowly: "I have only one wish—to make you happy."

Suddenly she broke down and sobbed in his arms.

"Then let me stay here," she said, "where I belong, and where, O Allan, we can really live happy ever after."

THOSE KIND PREDICTIONS.

The wedding was over.

"Guests," announced the usher, "will kindly register their predictions in this book."

"What predictions?"

"As to how long you'll give 'em to stay married."

THE BRIBE

By
Annie Hinrichsen

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

He had been introduced to her half an hour before. Another member of the legislature had drawn him into the group of legislators, newspaper men and lobbyists that surrounded her, and she had asked him to take her up to the gallery to watch the meeting of the house of representatives.

"You are not a political woman, are you?" he asked.

"No."

"I'm glad." There was a warmth in his voice and a deepening of his tone that made the speech a personality. From his square, clean-shaven chin to his closely cropped hair the red color suddenly flashed. "For a moment, when I first saw you, I feared you might be a lobbyist and—well, I knew I was going to like you awfully well and I wanted you to be—just a charming, beautiful girl."

"I don't know anything about lobbying. I am interested, of course, in the work of the legislature, but I know really nothing about it. There is but one political matter which I understand, and I care a great deal about it. I hope the state will locate its new home for the aged and infirm at Greenville."

"Why Greenville?" he asked, quickly.

"Greenville is my home. It is a large mining and manufacturing city. Three-fourths of the population work in the mines and factories. They are poor people and many of them are too old and too ill to work. But they have always lived in Greenville; old people do not uproot easily, and in order to remain there they totter about, old men and women, doing the little tasks that hardly suffice to feed them—unwilling to go to the state homes in other cities, too proud to go to the poorhouse. Mr. Eversman, there is nothing on earth so pitiable as an old man or woman who bears on age-bent shoulders the bitter burden of poverty, loneliness and home longing."

"And you care so much for the people of Greenville?"

"An old man, broken—"

She stopped suddenly. Whether it was a resolution to say no more or a sob that had arisen in her throat and choked her voice Eversman could not determine. He was remembering joyfully that he was chairman of the committee of legislators appointed to decide the site of the new home for aged and infirm and that he had the power to give to the old people of Greenville a home in their own community.

A week later the chairman of the committee called to order a meeting.

"Mr. Chairman," began a young member of the legislature (an intimate friend of Eversman), "we have in the last week visited each proposed site, and have inquired carefully into the merits of the various places offered. We are now assembled to vote for the location we think most suitable. I desire to cast my vote for Greenville and I move we make the selection unanimous."

Another member was on his feet seconding the motion.

"I object! I object!" thundered a legislator who had listened to a voice of gold which had advised him to vote for a location which was not Greenville.

"The motion is before the committee," ruled the chairman. "Those in favor of building the new home at Greenville signify by saying aye. Those opposed, no. Three in favor of Greenville. Three opposed. In a tie the chair casts the deciding vote. The chair votes for Greenville. Greenville will have the new state home."

"And I tell you, Don Eversman," shouted an angry voice, "that you're a blackguard, a high-handed political thief. You were bribed into giving Greenville the plum. That good-looking daughter of old Jim Vincent's has been down here coaxing you into planting the home at Greenville because the site chosen there is an old mud hole belonging to her father for which the state will pay a big fortune. You've been bribed by a woman—"

The chairman's fist sent him to the floor.

A few hours later Donald Eversman was in Greenville.

"Miss Vincent," he announced abruptly, "the home will be built in Greenville. I came to tell you."

"You came here to tell me—just to tell me—all the way from the capital—"

"I came to tell you that you lobbied successfully for the old people of Greenville. Sentimental talk and a beautiful face made a fool of the chairman of the committee and he dictated the selection of the site."

She stepped back from him. Her face was very white.

"I have learned, however," he went on in a savage, jeering tone, "that the touchingly sentimental story of the homesick old people concealed the real reason of your desire to have the home in Greenville. You've won. Your father will become, by the sale of his land to the state, a rich man."

"It was for him," accented the girl, "that I pleaded with you."

"You arranged to meet me? You knew the day I talked with you in the house gallery that I was chairman of the committee? You knew that I disliked women lobbyists and you pretended to know nothing of legislative juggling? You acknowledge this?"

"Yes."

He walked up to her, laid one hand on her shoulder and with the other turned her face until her eyes met his. As he looked at her the anger left his face.

"Tell me," he urged, gently, "all about it. No girl with your true eyes and tender lips ever deliberately deceived a man in her own interests. There was a reason."

"A reason—yes. For an old man—a poor old man, broken and helpless and very proud. Mr. Vincent is not my own father. I am his stepdaughter. My mother is dead. He was once a wealthy man. But he has lost nearly everything. The only shelter left to him is with his son, and the son has a wife—such a wife. I have a little property, but from me he will accept nothing, though he has been to me all that my own father would have been. There came the chance to sell to the state an unproductive piece of land, the only property he had left. The sum paid for it would make him independent for life. Of course I helped him. What sort of daughter should I have been if I had not tried to take from him the burden of poverty, dependence and humiliation? I do not share the money. His son will inherit it."

"You didn't tell me—you said that the old people of Greenville—"

"I did plead, with all my heart, for an old man. But I could not tell you—"

"I wonder if a young man pleading for himself, with all his heart—"

"Your tears, sweetheart, I've kissed away, and that means, doesn't it, the very best thing in the world for me—for us?"

NOT HIS FAULT.

Little Augustus Johnson had learned some things about the face of a clock, but not quite all there is to know.

"What time is it, 'Gustus?" asked his employer one night, to test him.

"It's jes' eight o'clock," said the boy, after a careful survey of the clock.

"No, you're wrong," said his employer. "It won't be eight o'clock for quite a while yet, not for 20 minutes."

"Bofe hands is p'inting to eight, jes' as straight as dey can p'int," said the boy, stubbornly. "If dey ain't telling de truf, I cyant help it."—Youth's Companion.

Stopped Those Pains.

Copper Hill, Va.—Mrs. Ida Conner, of this place, says, "For years I had a pain in my right side, and I was very sick with woman's troubles, I tried different doctors but could get no relief. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I took Cardui, and it relieved the pain in my side, and now I feel like a new person. It is a wonderful medicine." Many women are completely worn-out and discouraged on account of some womanly trouble. Are you? Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Its record shows it will help you. Why wait? Try it today. Ask your druggist about it.

HENDERSON---JORDAN

Secret Wedding Leaks Out After Two Weeks.

Mr. Alex W. Henderson, the popular Main street grocer, and Miss Charlotte Mae Jordan were married May 3, and the wedding was kept secret until Thursday. Mr. Henderson was supposed to be a confirmed bachelor and the news came as a surprise to his friends. The marriage took place at the home of Mr. J. W. Hubbard, on Brown street, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. O. Clevenger. All of the very few friends who knew of it were sworn to secrecy, but the news finally leaked out. The bride had been for some time the book-keeper in Mr. Henderson's grocery store on Main street. For the present they have taken rooms at Mr. Hubbard's.

Frightened to Death.

A man died at Hanley, England, under curious circumstances lately. While a boiler was being stocked at the Deep Pit, two loud explosions took place. They were caused by the automatic opening of a valve, but Samuel Raybould, one of the stokers, exclaimed: "That's frightened me to death," and, falling, he instantly expired.

KIND HEARTED MRS. BILLY

Has Experience in Subway in Which Element of Gratitude Was Lacking.

On one of the intermittent warm days of this winter a certain Mrs.
Upper-Westend, who is as kind-hearted as she is handsome and well-dressed, took a Subway train downtown to call at her husband's office and go to luncheon with him.
"I've had another experience, Billy,"
she said to her husband upon reaching her destination. "There was a poorly dressed woman sitting next to me in the train, and when she got up to leave I saw that she had left her fur on the seat and I called to her.
Now wouldn't you have thought she would have been grateful to me? Not a bit. That's all you get for telling people they've lost something. She gave me the queerest, most disagreeable look, and at first I thought she wouldn't come back. It made me cross, so I only waved my hand at the fur, and she snatched it up and went off without even saying thank you."
"You needn't look so queer, Billy,"
I suppose you think I am meddling again, but you wouldn't have let her go off without her fur! It was such a pretty one, too. It is surprising what good things some poor people wear."

"You shouldn't leave off your own fur even if it is a warm day," remarked Mr. Billy, dryly, and Mrs.
Billy, throwing a hasty glance over her pretty self and her belongings, answered with a little shrill:
"Oh, I only threw it over my arm.
You don't suppose that it was my new Christmas fur that that horrid woman went off with, Billy?"
And that was just what had happened.

VAST LAKE OF SOLID SODA

Remarkable Discovery at Lake Magadi in East Africa—Mystery Is Cleared Up.

Wonderful as have been the reports of the vast soda deposit at Lake Ma-gadi in East Africa, the tendency hitherto has been to deem the stories fantastic. Now, however, the mystery is cleared up by the report of an expedition which penetrated quite to the interior of Britain's remote possession —as far, indeed, as 15 miles from the frontier of German East Africa. The ascertained facts, according to the Chemical News, are more surprising than the first reports. What, in the case of an ordinary lake, would be water consists at Magadi of a solid deposit of soda, with a hard surface looking like pink marble. During the wet season—which in this region is very short—the surface is covered with a few inches of water. Immediately after the cessation of the rains the whole of the surface becomes dry with the exception of a margin about 30 yards wide. Even during the wet season the amount of water on the surface in no way renders impracticable the working of the deposit. For many years "Indians" from Nairobi, who use this soda for washing purposes and as snuff, have been removing it from the lake without regard to the season.—Current Literature.

Unnerved.

Every minute was precious, said the man who wanted his letters written in a hurry, yet he left a building that provided three public stenographers and walked four blocks up the street to another stenographer.

"She is no more efficient than those other girls," he said, "but nobody will get good work out of them today because two workmen were killed this morning in the building next door. All the men working in the new building have gone home for the day; that is a rule of the trades, and it might just about as well be made a rule in the neighboring offices, for the clerks who see and hear about the accident are never fit for much the rest of the day. There is no danger attached to their jobs, but the accident gives every stenographer and typewriter in the building a case of nerves."

Sleeping Potion.

A woman who suffered much from sleeplessness was relieved by the strong odor of mint breathed each night.

The remedy was one of those old wife cures that are often effective, and was brought to the sleepless one's notice by a clover friend, who sent a bottle of strong essence of mint, a small sponge and daintily embroildered lawn bag to hold the saturated sponge.

The bag had a spray of mint leaves done in colors on one side, and on the other "Sweet Sleep." Through a casing at the top were drawn narrow green ribbons that could be hung over the head of the bed at night.

The odor of the mint proved soothing, and gradually the sleeping habit returned.

Market for Condensed Milk.

The United States consul feels sure that there's a promising market in Malta for condensed milk. "Fresh cow's milk is scarce in Malta," he writes, "and most Maltese use goat's milk. There are about 10,000 milch goats in the islands. They are driven from house to house and milked in the presence of the buyer. Goats are tied at the doors of Maltese cafes and when milk is wanted for coffee the animal is milked by the owner. As a large proportion of the goats have Mediterranean fever germs, the foreign residents refrain from using their milk and the British garrison is for-bidden to use it."

ALMOST A TRAGEDY.

A tempest from an alley rushed.
A bulldog on his trail;
'Twas midnight, all the streets were hushed.
When, hark! arose a wall
That reached the very stars on high
And tore the night in twain.
A cop who heard that dreadful cry
With sudden fear was taken.
And many a dreamer in his bed,
Aroused from sleep profound,
A-trembling fell and muttered—
"This murder, I'll be bound."
But such was not the case, nor yet,
Was such the case to be.
The bulldog failed his prey to get,
The tempest climbed a tree.

Horrors of Journalism.

"Why is it that whenever there is an accident or a calamity of any kind there are twice as many people killed or injured and twice as much property destroyed, in the headlines of the Daily Howler, as you find in the other papers?" querulously asked the constant reader.

"You oughtn't to kick about that!"
thundered the editor of the Howler;
"we give you twice as much thrill for your penny as any other paper does!"

Smart Jimmy.

The boy who was asked to name the seven wonders of the world stumbled along until he had totaled six. "There he stalled."

"Can any pupil add the seventh?"
the teacher asked. "Perhaps you can, Jimmy?"

"If you please, sir," replied Jimmy.
"I think it's the triple play unassisted!"

More Than Shakespeare Knew.

Abel Stringem—I can tell you, my boy, Shakespeare could never have written a drama like yours.

Playwright—You are very complimentary.

Abel Stringem—Not at all. Take,
for instance, that electric tram accident in the third act.—London Tit-Bits.

She Knew His Tricks.

"No, deary," he said, "I don't miss the delayed spring. How can I when my little robin, my little peach blossom, here with me all the time?"

"That's quite enough of that,
George," said the peach blossom.
"Why don't you speak up like a man and say you want to stay out all night?"

MODIFYING IT A LITTLE.

Orville Fibbs—I told your father last night of the immense amount of money I have invested in various stocks and bonds!

Miss Billyanne—Yes, he said you had been telling him some capital stories.

Such Is Fame.

Irkutsk is far from anywhere,
But has a wide renown,
Because globe trotters all declare
'Tis quite a wicked town.

The Night Owls.

Oldbach—Do you believe in hereditary influences?

Youngpop—Sure; now my baby is wakeful at night, and I fully believe it is just because my wife always insisted on sitting up and waiting for me to come home.

First Choice.

Mr. Jawback—My dear, I was one of the first to leave.

Mrs. Jawback—Oh, you always say that.

Mr. Jawback—I can prove it this time. Look out in the hall and see the beautiful umbrella I brought home.

College Faculties.

Father—Young man, I am surprised at your impudence. Are you quite sure that you have complete control of all your faculties?

William Rahrah—No; but you bet
the Athletic association has!—Puck.

Not Important.

"Jacksby told me the other day that he was a leader among men. In fact, led men in the same way as the kaiser."

"So he does. He leads the germans."

Sensitive.

"A safety razor is always an acceptable present. And yet, we know an artist with a Vandyck beard who felt grossly insulted on receiving such a gift. Some persons are so touchy."
—London Punch.

WALKED OFF WITH EVIDENCE

Counterfeiter Is Acquitted Although Secret Service Had the Goods
on Him.

Several lawyers were discussing the United States secret service the other day in the marshal's office in the federal building. Much that they said was directed at a quiet but capable deputy marshal, who took it in silence until he got an opportunity to counter. The most persistent of his tormenters began to tell of a counterfeiting case when the severity of the government put a "good fellow" in jail. "Well, it was different up in my county," exclaimed the deputy marshal, breaking into the confab. "We had the evidence on the fellow all right," he continued. "He had made about a peck of silver dollars. The only difference between his product and that of Uncle Sam's was that the counterfeiter put a couple more grains of silver in his. He got away with it for months, and when we began to collect evidence we had bags full of the phony dollars. When the man was placed on trial the learned members of the bar were permitted to satisfy their curiosity by handling the counterfeiters. But the man was acquitted." "How was that?" one of the lawyers wanted to know. "You see the lawyers walked off with the evidence. They didn't leave a single dollar," was the reply.—Philadelphia Times.

COUNTRY OF GIANT MELONS

Succulent Fruit Grows to Enormous Size in Certain Portions of Turkish Empire.

Both the water and musk melon of Diarbekir are the largest I have ever seen. Watermelons grow in Diarbekir each as large as a flour barrel, and musk melons, but little smaller, only the muskmelon is rounder, like a pumpkin.

These melons are raised in the hed-es of the Tigris, as after the spring rains are over and the snows have melted from the mountains the river shrinks to comparative insignificance, and large tracts of the bottom land are thus exposed.

This land is plowed, and in each hill where the seeds are planted a quantity of pigeon manure is mixed in with the earth. There are people in Diarbekir engaged in breeding pigeons for no other purpose than to sell the manure to the melon growers.

As the melons are growing over the moist soil of what was a river for six months of the year, no irrigation is necessary and, though it seldom rains during the summer, the melon vines never dry up. The meat of these water and musk melons is, however, very coarse and not nearly as sweet as the melons of smaller varieties in other districts of this country.—Consular Report.

Warning Before Command.

In bringing up my children I found that at night when they were tired they were spared many tears by being warned before I gave them a strict command. Instead of saying, "Now it is time to go to bed; put away your blocks at once," I would say, "It is nearly time to go to bed. Finish your house first, and then put away your blocks." In this way the children were fully prepared to go, and there was consequently no begging nor temptation for me to show my lack of firmness by being persuaded to allow them to build "just one more house."

Imagine a mother in the midst of an absorbing chapter being told by one in higher authority to put down her book at once and go to bed. Would it not save a frown of impatience to be told to finish the chapter first?

Teeth Brushed to Music.

An esteemed correspondent writing to the Cleveland Plain Dealer adds a testimonial to the efficacy of the brush-your-teeth-to-music idea. He says: "We are not Wagnerian at our home, having more regard for the temper than for the chromatic blendings.
When my two boys and my girl brush their teeth the accompaniment is that flinging air called 'The Turkey and the Straw.' One of the children whistles the air and the others brush. The child who whistles accompanies himself with two blocks of wood covered with sandpaper, and the wishy-washy noise produced by this simple instrument sets the brushes going furiously.
My only fear is that the kids will wear their teeth down to the nerve.
Accept this as a modest boost for the cause of dental sanitation."

Electric Pencils.

A novelty that will appeal especially to the motorist and the physician. It is a pencil with an electric light in it.
This illuminates a sheet of paper, and one can write with ease in the darkness.

Illuminated walking sticks are also attracting favor, and a distinguished gentleman, commenting upon the ingenuity of those new inventions, remarked that the man who would jump instantly into fame and the hearts of his fellow-men would be the individual who could invent a book and eye that carried a tiny electric light to guide the stumbling fingers of distressed husbands struggling with the intricacies of a wife's gown.

Merciful Man.

Human—My husband is so gentle and considerate. "In what way?"
"Why, he wouldn't let me get a vacuum cleaner because it employed such a merciful man."

JOY FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Some of the Delights of Life in the Himalayas Described in Graphic Style.

My housekeeping was a never-ending source of amusement to me, wrote Mary Blair Beebe in Harper's Magazine. Tandook came every morning for the day's orders, saying "Verry-wellsair," to all my suggestions, running the words together as though the whole phrase was one, and rolling his r's as sonorously as a Spaniard. Certain, he had no idea of the masculinity implied, for he sometimes varied his response by saying, "Yes, madame." One could write a volume on the eccentricities of a Tibetan's English. W— was always making Tandook say "fifteen meeleek," which is, being interpreted, "six tins of milk." We were sometimes lucky enough to be able to buy a chicken from some passing Nepalese hillman. I have an aversion to making the personal acquaintance of my animal food before it is ready for the table, but that I could never make Tandook understand. He always sought me triumphantly with a squawking chicken under each arm. I must look at them, and even lift them to see how heavy they were and how good a bargain he had made.

TESTING THE "YOUNG BUD"

Old Bachelor Strays Into Young Folks' Party and Turns a Neat Com- plement.

An old bachelor had somehow strayed into a young people's party, and realizing that he could not hope, among so many handsome youths, to make the heart of a single maiden throb, he said to the nearest girl whose conversation had shown some what more good sense than he had expected:

"Look about the ballroom. Notice that the girls who have removed their gloves have well shaped arms. And—ahem!—some have not removed them—"

"But neither generalization fits me," answered the girl, "for, you see, I have one arm bare and one gloved—what would you say about me?"

"Walk out and let me look at them," said the old bachelor, unfeelingly.

The girl took a few steps out, paused, and returned.

"Take the other glove off," said the old bachelor.

Brown Bread and Beans.
The story of brown bread and baked beans is more interesting and important than local historians appear to think. Perhaps the most incisive record of Boston brown bread is the entry in the selectmen's records, January 7, 1746, or January 18, 1747 (n. s.). It calls brown bread that which has a good proportion of Indian meal. June 20, 1764, the selectmen ordered that the proportion of Indian meal in brown bread must not exceed one-half. The use of Indian meal in bread is mentioned in the selectmen's order of October 29, 1722. Apparently the use of Indian meal as a substitute for wheat flour was due to poverty. Or is there any evidence to show such a use of Indian meal in the seventeenth century? The term "brown bread" is mediaeval, but had nothing to do with Indian meal, it seems, until Major Thwing acted in 1747. He was a famous man.

Time's Changes.
A New York dancing master, at a recent meeting of teachers of the poetry of motion, said that dancing as an amusement had lost much ground in the last few years, and that he saw no prospects of a revival. "True," he said, "there are dancing parties and balls every season, but they are not what they were once upon a time. They begin late and end early, and those who attend for the most part do not go to dance. The parents and the grandparents of our pupils used to go to halls where dancing began at 9 o'clock, and there was dancing until the 'supper march' was played. Supper over, there was dancing again until 'all hours.' The smoking and cardrooms are more popular now than the dance floor.

Differences in Alcohol.
More than two-thirds of the total production of German alcohol is obtained from potatoes, but only a comparatively small portion is sold in the form of hevedges, for the reason that other kinds of alcohol are better adapted to the manufacture of liquors and brandies.

The alcohols of wine, cherries and cane possess an agreeable aroma, whereas all alcohols produced from beets, grains, molasses and potatoes, must be rectified before they are ready for consumption, in order to free them of their unpleasant natural taste.

As to potatoes, this resultant alcohol possesses an oily flavor which would be particularly unpleasant if not eradicated by rectification.

Rest is a Beautifier.
Rest is one of the greatest of beautifiers. Rest, however, is not possible unless complete relaxation is its companion. Immediately the nerves and muscles are relieved of their tension the heart beats less nervously and a sense of calmness is experienced. Many women who long for a clear, fresh complexion, fewer wrinkles, bright eyes and an enviable cheerfulness would find these things within their grasp if they added an hour of two to their slumbers. Resting for five minutes or longer is very refreshing during the day.

school-house there. They say that the walls are cracking, and he is going to see what is the matter. It is a bad thing, that our houses have to be built by missionaries, very few of whom know anything about architecture. Many grievous and expensive mistakes have been made in this way.

I am doing a little gardening this year,—tomatoes, lettuce, and beans. Mrs. McGilvary has given me four rose bushes, and Dr. Kerr some cosmos, so I hope to have some flowers for the girls before long. I am also going to try a few raspberries, along the side fence. Mrs. McG. gets so much good from hers, and it is the only berry we have out here, so they taste pretty good. She stew them a little and then puts them on plates in the sun for several days to dry, when they become like "Peach leather." It is very nice for touring. I wish you would send me some nasturtium and sweet pea seed. If you order from the florist, tell them to send them in tin, or wrapped in tin-foil, for the action of the salt air, spoils them sometimes. Mrs. Kerr says, though Mrs. M. thinks not. I should like to try some aster seed again, too, for those you sent me did not come up. If there is anything new in the flower line, that is pretty or interesting, get some seed, and send to Mrs. M. for she is so interested in those things.

I think I'll start out on my wheel this afternoon, and make some visits. Hope this delightful weather will keep up.

Don't bother about the seeds yet. Mrs. McG. says Oct. 1, is the time to set them out.

LUCY STARLING.

BEST WAY TO GET GOOD REST

Wear Clothing as Loose as Possible and Lie Flat on the Back With Feet Up.

Too much is preached about exercising, and too little about resting. Few women know the value of resting or how to get the most out of a free half-hour. It can do wonders toward "pulling up" a tired body and mind, but it must be thorough. While lying flat on the back with the feet up, and, most important of all—loose clothing, blood is being manufactured twice as rapidly as in any other position, and the process of "restoration" is going on in the body with the greatest possible speed. Boots should be removed, and loose slippers donned, and it is a great help if fresh stockings are put on. There is a tendency to feel chilly when a tired person first lies down, and if the body is called upon to make extra effort toward heating itself (which it very obligingly will do), the "resting" is not complete. Hence the necessity for throwing a covering over you, even if resting in a warm room. The words of a man, curiously enough, recur to me on this subject. Mr. Seymour Hicks, whose youthful appearance is one of his causes for fame, says he likes to devote the time between five and six o'clock to resting. When he can do that, no matter how tired he is, or how trying has been the day, he goes to his evening's work quite refreshed. "But," says this jolly actor, "it must be really rest. I take off my clothing, don pyjamas, pull down the blinds, get into bed, and imagine I am retiring for the night. A half-hour of rest under these conditions is worth more than half-a-day's less thorough sleeta." Negligee garments are restful in themselves, and no woman who values her good looks will fail to form the habit of exchanging street clothes for dainty and attractive house gowns, when she is at home for the evening.

TOM WELDON WAS TOO MEAN

He Was Not the Kind of Poor Man Andrew Carnegie Advised Girls to Marry.

Andrew Carnegie recently advised some New York girls to marry poor men. "I would rather be born poor than a millionaire," he said, "and I have had experience of both estates." At a dinner Mr. Carnegie, elaborating the above, said:

"I suppose these girls will all take my advice about marrying poor men. Poor men are so much easier to find than rich ones. But that is no hardship."

"So many people think that a poor young couple, to get on, must practice the niggardly meanness of Tom Weldon."

"Tom Weldon, on a journey from Altoona to Philadelphia, got into a game of cards with a young man. The young man lost steadily. Finally, as Philadelphia drew near, he was out a total of $61."

"The young man had a hard hunt to produce all this money. From one pocket he took two $20 bills, from another two fives, from his waistcoat a $10 goldpiece and a silver dollar, and from his trousers a half-dollar, a quarter, two dimes and four pennies. The final penny he couldn't find, search where he would."

"I'm awful sorry," he said to Tom Weldon. "I'm a cent short."

"Never mind, young man," said Tom, genially. "We won't stick at a cent. You can give your evening paper."

Making It Plain.

"If there is anything I am proud of," said Emmy Wehlen, now playing in Marriage à la Carte, "it is the descriptive power of my sex. Once, when I was playing in Pittsburg, my best chum went out to inspect some locomotive works, and here is how she described it when she got home. 'You pour,' she said, 'a lot of sand into a lot of boxes, and you throw old stove lids and things into a furnace, and then you empty the and everybody yells and swears. Then you pour it out, let it cool and pound it, and then you put in it a thing that bores holes in it. Then you sew it together and paint it, and put steam in it, and it goes splendidly; and they take it to a drafting-room and make a blue print of it. But one thing I forgot—they have to make a boiler. One man gets inside and one gets outside, and they pound frightfully; and then they tie it to the other thing, and you ought to see it go!'"—Young's Magazine.

A Lincolnism.

Norman Hapgood, the noted editor, quoted in an address on Lincoln, a Lincolnism of great value to parents.

"Lincoln," said Mr. Hapgood, "was once talking to a dissipated man of middle age who was lamenting over the fact that his seventeen-year-old son had just begun to indulge in dissipation."

"Well, there is just one way," said Lincoln, "to bring up a child in the way it should go, and that is to travel that way yourself."

Had the Appetite.

It was at a recent Friars' dinner that Augustus Thomas told the story of a newspaper man's laudable appetite. There had arisen a controversy over the ability of a man to eat two quails a day for thirty consecutive days. A Park Row reporter was asked if he would undertake the task. "Say, Bill," he replied, "make it turkey."

Harrisburg	2	0	1000
Hopkinsville	1	1	500
Fulton	1	1	500
Vincennes	1	1	500
McLeansboro	1	1	500
Clarksville	1	1	500
Cairo	1	1	500
Paducah	1	1	500

While it is always pleasant for the home team to win, Hopkinsville does not begrudge the victory Clarksville won Thursday. The Volunteers deserved to win, because they out-played us and defeated the Moguls in the first two innings, seeming determined to wipe out the sting of Wednesday's defeat.

Lyman Johnson was in the box at the start and the game was lost before a dozen balls had been pitched. He was in bad form and was pounded out of the box in two innings, 4 scores being made in each inning. The Moguls rallied in the third and filled the bases. Nairn walked, Ireland struck out and Jones sent a two-bagger to right field. Huhn's three-bagger scored Nairn and Jones and Bosche walked. In a bone-headed attempt to steal, both Jones and Bosche were caught, to the profound disgust of the fans. Johnson was taken out and Binkley put in and the game was won by a score of 5 to 3 after that point, but the fatal 8 scores were too heavy a handicap and the Volunteers quit 11 to 5.

OPENING GAMES.

Under auspicious surroundings and favorable climatic conditions the Kitty League season opened here Wednesday afternoon, a parade preceding the game. A special train brought in 160 wild fans from Clarksville. Yon was in midseason form and he applied the whitewash for an opener. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Clarksville	0	6	5
Hopkinsville	5	5	1
Batteries—Bailey and Pierre; Yon and Huhn.
The attendance was 1,367.

McLeansboro, Ill., May 17.—A half holiday was observed here this afternoon in honor of the opening of the Kitty League. Beck saved his team from a shutout by knocking a home run. "Crazy Snake" Calbert was as steady as a clock and kept the hits scattered. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
McLeansboro	1	6	4
Harrisburg	4	7	2
Batteries—Beck and Derroz; Calbert and Fish.

Vincennes, Ind., May 17.—In a beautifully hard-fought game Paducah and Vincennes opened the Kitty League season here this afternoon. Business houses closed at one o'clock and a parade preceded the game. Costly bobbles and timely singles at critical periods lost for Paducah. Both pitchers were in great form. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Paducah	8	2	1
Vincennes	3	3	2
Batteries—Floyd and Goff; Hoyt and Glenn.

Fulton, Ky., May 17.—The Kitty League opening was marred this afternoon when Cairo forfeited to Fulton, owing to an unsatisfactory decision of the umpire in the ninth inning. Manager Powers called his team to the bench and refused to play longer. The city is baseball crazy and a big crowd attended the game. The stores closed at one o'clock. Score:

Fulton	9	0	0
Batteries—Vickers and Cranor;

THURSDAY'S GAMES.

Clarksville 11, Hopkinsville 5. Clarksville turned the tables on the locals and won Thursday in a slugfest. Johnson was driven from the slab and was succeeded by Binkley, who fared but little better. The locals also gave the pitchers miserable support. Score: R. H. E. Hopkinsville.....5 10 8 Clarksville.....11 16 5 Batteries—Johnson, Binkley and Huhn; Marbet and Erloff.

Cairo 2, Fulton 1. Fulton, Ky., May 18.—In a beautifully played game the Egyptians won today by bunching hits. Both pitchers worked superbly, but Cooley weakened in one inning, and the visitors found him for enough safeties to win. Fulton's only run was made on errors. Score: R. H. E. Fulton.....1 2 3 Cairo.....2 1 6 Batteries—Cooley and Stewart, Newlanes and Cranor.

Paducah 7, Vincennes 2. Vincennes, Ind., May 18.—By bunching hits in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings, Paducah piled up enough runs to win easily. Both pitchers were wild, Gossage settled after the fourth and allowed no more runs. Higgins was knocked out of the box in the seventh. Score: R. H. E. Paducah.....7 7 1 Vincennes.....2 3 1 Batteries—Gossage and Goff; Higgins, Eselle and Glenn.

Harrisburg 8, McLeansboro 5. McLeansboro, Ill., May 18.—Heavy work with the bat enabled Harrisburg to duplicate their victory of yesterday. Farthing was wild and was substituted by Hastings. Score: R. H. E. McLeansboro.....5 8 1 Harrisburg.....8 15 2 Batteries—Hancock and Waller; Farthing, Hastings and Fish.

KITTY MEWS

Of all glad words, the gladdest of all, The season has opened for playing ball.

Vincennes comes Monday for three games.

There were 998 adults and 369 children at the opening game, a total of 1,367.

The fifth game of the first series between Hopkinsville and Clarksville will be played at Central City tomorrow. The game has been well advertised and a big crowd is expected.

the Northern League of Indians, was tried out in the game at Clarksville yesterday. Holycross has been sent his transportation and is expected any day.

Umpire Conklin gave good satisfaction here. He is audible and distinct in his announcements, active and attentive and seems to be perfectly fair. Not one of his decisions here called forth a protest from the fans or players.

It will not do to underestimate the strength of Clarksville's team. From the start made here they must be reckoned with in the finish. They have some particularly strong men at the bat and Manager Curtis made a most favorable impression here as a player and as a "mixer."

Priest, who was shoved off on Manager Watkins of the Indianapolis association the end of the season by Clarksville, due to padding the official scores by Clarksville, has struck his stride this year and is back with the Billikens. Nashville let the lanky youngster out to the pastures.—Vincennes Sun.

The 160 Clarksville visitors at Hopkinsville were impressed with the impartiality with which the Hopkinsville fans applauded plays of either team. We venture to say that a fairer crowd never attended a ball game, and we congratulate Hopkinsville in establishing a precedent for all the towns to follow.—Leaf-Chronicle.

President Gossnell talked to his team last night and told them that they were here to play ball, not to rag, that the captain was the only man to do the talking, and very little of that. Gossnell also gave every captain warning that there would not be any umpire baiting in the league this year, and that any offense would draw a fine of from $10 to $50.—Vincennes Sun.

President Sends Report.

President Taft sent to the Senate the Tariff Board's full report of its investigation of the pulp and news print paper industry in the United States and Canada. Briefly summarized the report said that a ton of news print paper is made in Canada for $5.35 less than it is made in the United States.

DIED OF DROPSY

Aged Citizen Passes Away After Long Illness.

W. C. Perkins, Sr., died Thursday night at the home of his son, W. C. Perkins, Jr., five miles northeast of the city. He had been ill of dropsy for more than twenty years. Mr. Perkins was in the 68 year of his age and is survived by three sons, J. M. Perkins, of Paducah; J. E. Perkins, of Oklahoma City, Okla.; W. C. Perkins, of this county, and one daughter, Mrs. W. L. Henderson, also of this county. Mr. Perkins was a native of Smithville, Tenn., but came to Christian county when only 17 years old. He was at one time a resident of this city, but moved to the country six years ago. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church and a citizen held in high esteem by all who knew him. His funeral services were held at Ebenezer church yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. G. W. Lyon, and the interment took place in the church burying ground.

WALLACE EMBRY,

Formerly of Howell, Died in Dade City, Fla., this Week.

Wallace E. Embry, a former citizen of Christian county, who lived in Dade City, Florida, for the last 15 years, died Wednesday, after an illness of several months. He was buried at Dade City yesterday.

Mr. Embry leaves a widow, formerly Miss Sallie Cooper, and seven children, all about grown. One of the sons, Barton S. Embry, recently graduated from the public school at Howell and is now in this city and will shortly go to Knoxville to accept a situation.

Mr. Embry was about 65 years of age and was a substantial and successful planter, making a specialty of raising fine cigar tobaccos, fruits and vegetables. He has a brother, Mr. Geo. W. Embry, living at Howell, and other relatives in this county.

NATIVE OF TODD

Dies at Home of Daughter in Christian.

J. W. Buchanan, aged about 75 years, died a few days ago at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Brandon, near Hawkins. He was a native of Todd county but resided in Trigg a many years. He came to Christian county about 10 years ago and had a daughter, Mrs. Buchanan.

wife and five children survive him. Mr. Buchanan was a member of the Christian church. The interment took place near Wallonia.

Victim of Consumption.

Thomas Newman, an asylum patient from Muhlenberg county, died Thursday. Death was caused by pulmonary tuberculosis. He was 38 years old and had been in the institution about eleven years. The remains were shipped to Greenville yesterday.

RUMELY TRACTOR

Plowed 16 1-2 Acres of Land In 7 1-2 Hours.

The Rumely Oil Pull Tractor, a big traction plow plowing a strip of ground the width of ten fourteen inch plows at one time, gave an exhibition on the farm of F. M. Pyle, one mile south of town, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Tractor is of 30 horse power and plowed 16 acres of land in 7 1/2 hours, an average of 6 1/2 inches deep.

Its operations were a revelation to those who saw this latest thing in advanced methods of plowing. All who saw it were more than pleased. This is undoubtedly the coming power for farm purposes. The tractor uses kerosene exclusively for fuel. The Rumely Company is permanently located at 119-121 Third Avenue North, Nashville, Tenn., and the Forbes Manufacturing Co. are the local agents.

The big tractor was placed on the vacant Hopson lot Thursday and climbed a steep embankment by its own power in getting onto the lot.

Peace Accomplished Fact.

Juarez, Mex., May 18.—Peace throughout Mexico is now an accomplished fact, according to Francisco I. Marero, Jr., leader of the Mexico revolutionists, who announced to-day that the news from Mexico City was entirely satisfactory to him.

Leap year would be all right if the dear girls were not so timid.

JOE IS SLY

Got 'em Guessing As He Is Up To

Louisville, Ky., May 19 the Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn. This is the question that puzzles the politicians, particularly the ocrats.

The former Senator and Governor of the Canal Zone is bill to speak at Owensboro Saturday. That it will not be an ordinary political speaking is shown by the way which it is being advertised in order to excite interest. Some believe that Blackburn will enter for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator against Congressman Ollie James.

lieve he will seek the Governor against James. Mr. Blackburn, when questioned, declined to throw any light on political future, but his activity dictates there is something in paration.

MILLION DOLLARS

Nashville, Tenn., May 18 brought to light in a trust document by the Columbia Finance Trust company, of Louisville, and here shows that the more million dollar estate of the late M. Murphy goes to the adopted children of the wife, Mrs. Ann Murphy, who died in New York April 14, her adopted children, Thomas J. Felder, formerly of York, and his wife, Nettie B. Mr. Murphy died suddenly he was lavishly entertained at a Christmas party by the announcement to make them his adopted children and the heirs of his estate.

Mr. F. F. Gilmore, Louisville, was in the interest of the line.
